The large sand box encourages digging and joint play. All children, dig, build and play in a sand box every week. They also play with water on a weekly basis.

COMPETENCIES

We use a play topic-based approach, in order to optimally stimulate the children with regard to the following areas of competence:

SENSORY DEVELOPMENT

We provide the children with practical, hands-on experience, using a variety of readily accessible materials for them to explore and discover so as to create self-awareness and maximise learning for themselves.

PHYSICAL DEVELOPMENT

We create opportunities for the children to move, balance and coordinate in a fun-filled manner through music and movement, physical education, swimming, outdoor games, that contribute to the enhancement of their total motor skills. We work with the children in a variety of activities that include drawing, painting, collage, weaving, dough play, baking, sand and water play, and fine manipulative work to promote fine motor skills, including dexterity, strength and eye-hand coordinations.

LANGUAGE SKILLS

We encourage the children to express themselves by sharing their experiences, thoughts and ideas among their peers, through activities such as role-play and show-and-tell sessions. At the same time, we provide learning opportunities for the children to listen, comprehend and give responses in our stories and song sessions. Both expressive and receptive language skills are equally important features of early communication.

We emphasize the importance of social skills and constantly encourage positive behaviour in daily class activities that include forming relationships, negotiating, making decisions and cooperating among themselves. We strive to serve as models for the children to learn to be caring and sensitive to the feelings of others.

COGNITIVE SKILLS

We promote the learning of cognitive skills, such as perception and understanding, problem-solving and reasoning, through structured and non-structured activities developed appropriately for guided-learning as well as self-learning. We value the individuality of each child and respect individual needs in our planning of activities, just as we allow the students to expand their capabilities through trial and error and by offering encouragement and understanding.
